

Employment Law Practitioner

Course Overview

The Employment Law Practitioner - a complete approach explores the entire employment journey, from recruitment, employment contracts and typical workplace issues that arise during employment - including the more challenging tasks of terminating employment, dealing with poor performance and disciplinary procedures.

This course uses detailed case studies and group discussions to illustrate the key concepts and provides a framework for you to analyse and apply the law at work.

This course is recommended for all HR practitioners with responsibility for employment law within their organisation, or for those building on an existing career in HR.

At the end of the course, you will be able to:

- assess your organisation's employment policies and procedures from a legal perspective.
- apply the law effectively to your organisation's employment practices and procedures.
- provide clear guidance on resolving the legal issues that arise at work, in accordance with best practice.
- have an Increased awareness of the complexities of employment law
- have a deeper awareness of the employer and employee rights
- have increased confidence in your role and the application of employment law
- have a greater ability to implement and support others with the implementation of employment law

Delivery Method

Virtual trainer led

Course Duration

3 Days

Max Numbers (Cohort)

15

AUDIENCE

All HR Practitioners with responsibility for employment law within their organisation, or those building on an existing career in HR